Lisa Randall

She's the first female tenured theoretical physicist at Harvard and MIT, very influential in the string theory arena; someday she may find all that missing matter in the universe. The 49-year-old is also really interested in the connections between art and science; she wrote the libretto for a chamber opera and in 2010 cocurated a Los Angeles art exhibit. Also, she skis. And is good-looking. And yet we do not hate Lisa Randall, PhD.
